

PARENTS BURNED, CLARENDON CHILDREN ESCAPE IN FIRE

$13,000 Damage in Crash at Enterprise

SIX UNINJURED AS MIDNIGHT BLAZE STARTS

GOOD WORK DONE BY TOWN'S VOLUNTEERS

Two Clarendon youngsters narrowly escaped death and their parents suffered burns about the face and hands in rescue attempts during a stubborn fire on the second story of the Clarence Wagner home on Anchor street last night, shortly before midnight.

Cause of the blaze, which caused unestimated damage, was still being investigated today by Fire Chief Leonard Falbriski and members of the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department.

Fourteen-year-old Kenneth Wagner was asleep in a second-floor bedroom, when he was awakened by smoke. The fire apparently started in his room and had a good start. Kenneth crawled along the floor of his smoke-filled room and then down the steps to the first floor of the home.

Meanwhile, his sister, Barbara, 13, was trapped by flames and smoke in her second-floor bedroom across the hallway. She climbed out the window and "shinned" down the raincoat to safety.

Mr. and Mrs. Wagner, who occupy bedrooms, along with four other children, on the first floor of the home, made repeated attempts to climb the stairway to rescue Barbara, but by that time the fire had spread from Kenneth's bedroom into the stairwell and also had broken through the roof in one place.

They were burned about the hands and face in trying to climb the steps, and finally were driven out of the house by the flames and dense smoke.

Mr. and Mrs. Wagner and Kenneth and Barbara were treated for burns at the fire scene by Dr. I. G. Hyer of Clarendon and Nurse Mary Dickerson.

Eighteen members of the Clarendon fire company answered the alarm and used both water from the hydrants and their booster tank in combating the flames. They were hampered by heavy smoke, but were credited with making a "good stop" of the fire, which had gained considerable headway.

PYMATUNING LAKE CLAIMS 2 VICTIMS

Andover, O., Oct. 8.—A rescue crew searched Pymatuning Lake today for a Youngstown, O., fisherman believed to have drowned with a companion.

A body identified as that of Gerald Cox, about 35, also of Youngstown, was found floating near an empty rowboat in the windswept waters yesterday.

Rough waters forced a Meadville group to postpone the search last night for Joseph Frankovich, who accompanied Cox to the lake Saturday night. Frankovich's auto was found parked nearby.

Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 8.—A raft Lethargia and three of its crew were expected today for a round of southern hospitality.

Several boats arranged to go up the Mississippi river to meet the small oil drum raft and escort it into town. Personal appearances at local theaters and a tour of the U. S. waterways experiment station were planned for the crew.

Patrol Calls Upon Drivers for Caution

Pennsylvania State Police of the Warren Substation today urged all motorists to use extreme caution in traveling roads in the district.

NEW SITE FOR CONFERENCES IS UNDECIDED

ALLIED TROOPS NOW IN AREA SELECTED

Tokyo, Oct. 8.—P.—Gen. Matt-hew B. Ridgway tonight accepted in principle the Communist proposal that Korean cease-fire talks begin anew near Panmunjom.

The Supreme Allied Commander said a site in the "immediate vicinity" of that Red outpost, six miles southeast of Kaesong, would meet the "fundamental condition of equality of movement and control." The Reds broke off the talks at Kaesong August 23.

Ridgway told the top Communist commanders in Korea he was instructing his liaison officers to meet Red liaison officers at 10 a. m. Wednesday (8 p. m. Tuesday, EST) to hammer out details for reopening talks.

Presumably the liaison meeting will be held in Panmunjom, as were most of its predecessors. "It is my view," Ridgway said, "that all that is necessary is a small neutral zone around the new conference site, with Kaesong, Munsan and the road to Panmunjom from Kaesong and Munsan free from attack."

"Is message may mean that Allied troops are in the area the Reds want cleared and Ridgway does not want to pull them out."

He said it was essential that any new site be located approximately half way between the Allied and Communist front lines.

Memorial Service For Soldier Is Held By Salvation Army

In a special Memorial Service held last evening in the citadel officers and members of the Warren Salvation Army Corps paid tribute to one of its youngest and most active members, Pfc. Marshall G. Fellows, who was killed in action in Korea on August 27, 1951.

Friends of the youth and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Feiro, 323 East Fifth avenue, were invited to join with Army personnel in a service which opened with group singing of a hymn, "Shall We Gather at the River."

Following a prayer by Lt. Jane States, assistant to the Corps Commander, Major Charles Shaffer, all joined in singing another hymn, "My Faith Looks Up To Thee," and Lt. States read a poem, "He Has Fallen On the Field of Battle," and a chorus, "God Bless Our Service Boys," was dedicated to buddies of the deceased soldier.

The Corps Songsters, of which Pfc. Fellows had been a member, sang "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder," and the band with which he likewise was affiliated, played "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us."

Mrs. Shaffer spoke informally concerning the young soldier's association with the Corps. He was dedicated to the Army as an infant and grew up in the Army program, serving as a Corps Cadet. Completing the six-year course of Bible study and Army doctrine, he received a scholarship for training in the Salvation Army College in New York City and intended to (Turn to Page Three)

ROAD CLOSED FIVE HOURS AS TRUCK UPSETS

HUGE CARGO SPILLS ON ROAD, IN CREEK

Pennsylvania State Police from Warren barracks investigated several highway accidents over the week-end, the most serious of which occurred at 3:45 p. m. Sunday when a huge tractor trailer struck a passenger car and then turned over at the north end of the Pine Creek bridge, at Enterprise, blocking traffic for about five hours. Contents of the trailer, about 25,000 pounds of copper tubing, spilled onto the highway and even into the creek.

State Police today estimated that damage as a result of the accident may reach $13,000. They said the passenger car involved suffered $1,000 in damage, the trailer was damaged to the extent of $4,000, the tractor to the extent of $8,000 and the cargo will suffer a loss of $2,000.

Ralph Landas, operator of the Pennzoil gasoline station at Enterprise, told a Times-Mirror reporter that Howard F. Hunt, 31, of Rochester, N. Y., driver of the huge tractor trailer which was en route to Pittsburgh from Rochester, was heading his outfit southward toward Pleasantville with a clear road ahead. A car driven by Chauncey Gray of Titusville, had stopped at the Route 27 intersection when suddenly a car to his rear occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Goddell and Mrs. Henri Hall of Jamestown, swung around the Gray automobile and out into the highway. Skillful handling of the big trailer by Hunt prevented a more serious accident, spectators said. Hunt swung to the left of the highway to avoid the Jamestown car, but struck its left side. The tractor trailer rolled over on its left side after the impact and came to a halt after sliding to the north end of the Pine Creek bridge.

The Jamestown car, a 1951 Lincoln, was knocked across Route 27 and apparently slid down an 18-foot embankment and landed right side up. Its left rear wheel was knocked into a field 50 feet south. It was extensively damaged.

All four occupants of the Lincoln were taken to Titusville Hospital where Dr. and Mrs. Goddell were discharged after treatment. Mrs. Hall, 48, suffered several fractured ribs and Mr. Hall, 66, a fractured ankle. They were reported in fair condition today.

Hunt, despite considerable pain, insisted upon remaining at the scene of the crash to aid State Police from Warren in their investigation and did not report to the hospital until some five hours after the mishap. He is reported in fair condition, suffering from broken ribs.

Boyd A. Wilson, 19, whose overturned 1941 Chevrolet coupe is pictured above, is in Warren General Hospital as a result of injuries received at 9:40 p. m. Saturday when his car capsized on Route 62, just north of the Akeley cemetery. His companion, Ned Zaffino, 17, of 7 Wetmore street, was treated at the hospital for lacerations to his left ankle and discharged.

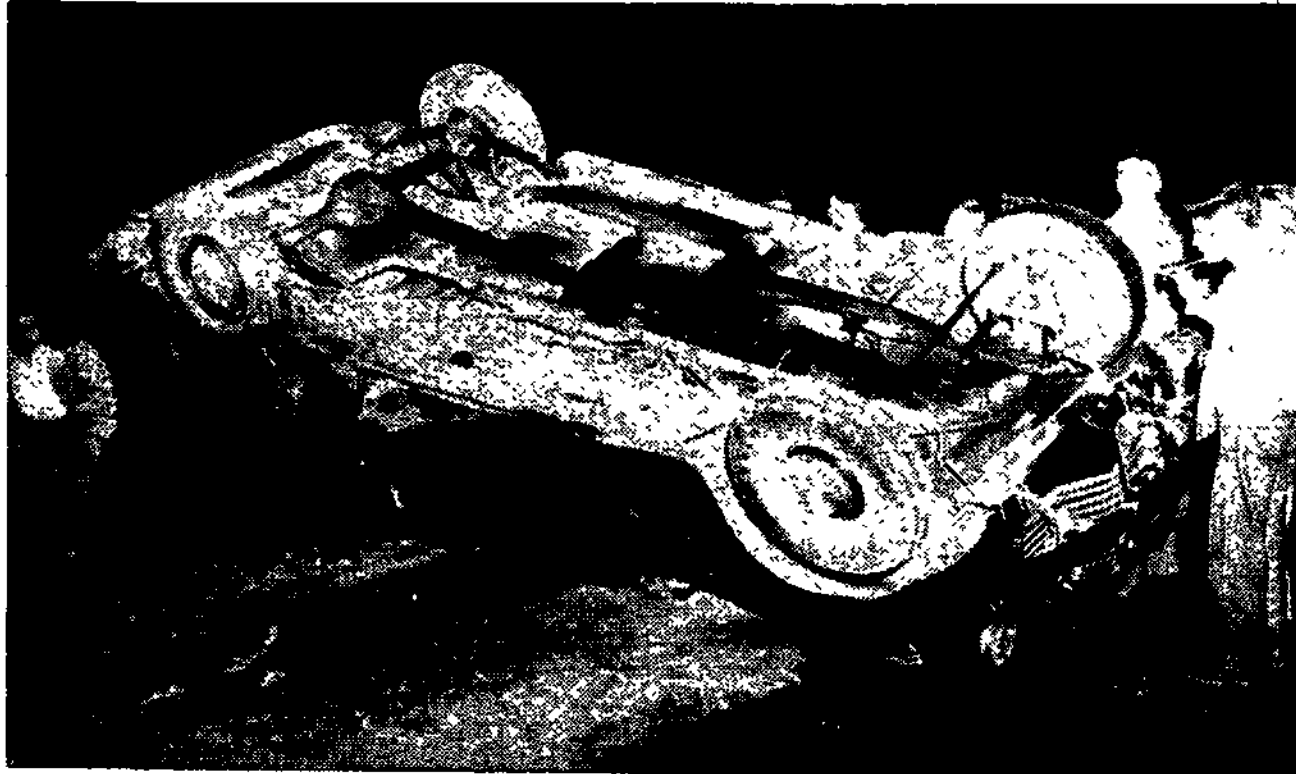

Wilson's car, headed south, turned over after the rear wheel went off the pavement and he lost control. The young man, who is employed by the East Side Fruit Company, suffered lacerations and (Turn to Page Fifteen)

New York Officers Take Ex-Convict On Charge of Hold-Up

Taken into custody by New York state detectives, Sunday, was John F. Suvic, 56, the ex-convict captured by Borough police, Wednesday night, after he shot at and narrowly missed Officer William Hewitt during an exciting chase on the East Side.

Wanted on a first degree robbery charge in Syracuse, Suvic waived extradition and was taken to Syracuse yesterday by Detectives Francis Ryan and Florin Marsello, who came from that city. They said he was wanted in Syracuse primarily for the hold up and robbery of the Commodore Restaurant, September 22. They said he visited the restaurant, bought a beer, returned later and held up the proprietor, a woman, and the single customer present, escaping with $38. He was armed with a pistol taken previously in one of two consecutive break-ins at a firearms store.

Chief Mike Evan, who communicated with authorities in Syracuse after Suvic was caught here, has received a colorful description of the ex-convict's background from the New York State Parole Board. He was last sentenced, December 9, 1929, from Onondaga county, to a prison term of from 15 years to life for the carnal abuse of a child, his fourth felony offense. While awaiting sentence for this offense, he was caught in an attempt to saw his way out of the Onondaga county jail, but was not prosecuted for this attempted escape. He was at that time under parole from Clinton prison where he had been released March 27, 1929, and declared delinquent on June 8, 1929, when he committed the new offense. WEARY FORCE FACES HEAVY RED BARRAGE

AMERICANS NEAR TOP OF HEARTBREAK RIDGE

By JOHN RANDOLPH
U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Oct. 8.—(P)—American infantrymen today inched slowly up the last Red-held peak of bloody Heartbreak Ridge on the eastern front.

Bone-weary, battle-thinned platoons of the U. S. Second Division's 23rd Regiment pushed steadily up the steep slopes against a punishing rain of grenade and small arms fire. At last report, they were within 200 yards of the top.

American troops fought up the slopes of a high mountain west of Heartbreak across the Mundung Valley. Reds hurled heavy machinegun fire on them from dirt and log bunkers.

On the western front, battles on each side of the Upper Imjin river raged with new bitterness.

British and American infantrymen, backed by tanks and massed artillery fire hacked out limited gains toward well-defended Communist hill positions. Their advances were slowed by the Reds' own impressive artillery and mortar barrages.

On the west-central front American troops captured "Bloody Baldy" and two other key objectives Sunday. The peak dominates most of the U. S. First Cavalry Division sector north of Yonchon.

A pooled dispatch from the front said the American infantrymen moved forward behind one of the heaviest artillery barrages of the war—20,683 rounds fired in 12 hours.

Allied warplanes continued their round-the-clock pounding of Red road and rail traffic Monday. U. S. Fifth Air Force said night flying pilots spotted 1,800 vehicles on North Korean Supply roads and destroyed at least 125 in pre-dawn attacks. Most of the traffic was spotted on the eastern front. Two trains also were attacked but results were not observed.

Allied planes Sunday flew 900 sorties, many of them in close support of United Nations troops across the peninsula.

DRIVING, TOO DRUNK TO WALK

There is no campaign under way by Borough Police to see how many drivers can be arrested and charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants.

No police officer has been instructed to see how many of them he can "get".

Police Chief Mike Evan has called no meeting of his force to tell his men to establish a record in these arrests.

But such a record has inevitably been established, a black mark against Warren. All during 1950 but eight such arrests were made; so far in 1951, there have been 26!

Whenever a driver is picked up and taken to the police station, there is no gloating over it by the police officers, either openly or quietly on the side. Quite the contrary. The policemen do not like it. They shake their heads about it. There is no gleam of conquest in their eye.

Why so many drunken drivers? You have asked yourself the question, you have heard it voiced by others: why so many drunken drivers?

There is, of course, an explanation. But there are several contributing factors, each one of which is an individual, integral part of the general answer.

Is there a greater trend toward driving after drinking to excess? It seems that there is, according to the police officers.

Is the law being more strictly enforced? This is true, according to the same source. It is ruled that no citizen may drive a car while under the influence of alcohol or any drug. The law is on the books, the police department is determined to enforce that law.

The police officers are paid to protect the residents of the borough, the Fire Department is maintained for the same reason. Full value from each unit is expected by the taxpayer. If there is a fire, it is the duty of the firemen to put it out. If a man is driving a car while intoxicated, he is endangering life and property, and it is the duty of the police to put him in — jail!

Any person has a right to drink intoxicants, even to excess, if such indulgence is conducted within a place where he does not impose his inevitable condition upon others less inclined. But he has no right to operate a car in an intoxicated condition. No man has a right to take into his hands the lives of other human beings and perhaps snuff out these lives just because he "wanted to have a few drinks."

Does the Police Department have orders, because so many have been arrested this year, to "let up" in its diligence? It has no such orders. Again, quite the contrary. If a policeman sees an automobile being operated by a drunken driver, or by a driver whom he suspects is drunk, it is his bounden duty to apprehend that driver. No matter for whom he works, no matter on which street he resides.

Aimed in the right direction and driven by a drunken driver, an automobile is a more deadly weapon than any in use since the times of Charlemagne, Caesar or Alexander, too.

If there is a campaign on to see how many drunken drivers can be nabbed in 1951, then the drunken drivers are conducting this campaign, and successfully.

He may be too drunk to walk, but he'll drive his car come hell or high water, life or death. Property of others has been damaged by some of the 26 already arrested this year, how soon is one of these drunken drivers going to unrightfully claim the life of someone else?

Warren's Borough Fathers are anticipating a busy but brief session of Council tonight.

They work with precision and rapidity, those Pennsylvania State Police at the Warren sub-station. A Times-Mirror reporter was in their office, Sunday afternoon, when a call was received in regard to a bad accident directly at the Enterprise intersection. The desk man, within a minute, was in contact with a State Police car cruising in the western part of Warren county. Nine minutes later, remarking that he had been delayed by heavy traffic, the driver called in (all this, of course, by short wave) to report conditions at the intersection, where a gigantic tractor trailer had tipped over, halting all traffic. With another officer now joining the desk man, they had Corry and Meadville on the air, were calling Warren Lowe for State Highway Department help, contacted Masterson Transfer Company with a request to send equipment for unloading 25,000 pounds of copper from the over-turned vehicle, were talking with two other officers who were covering a three-car accident above Kinzua, and were telephoning garages in Titusville to send out their heaviest lifting equipment to right the tractor trailer. It all happened so fast and in such an efficient manner that your reporter was left somewhat aghast and very favorably impressed.

They Seem to Go Together

Here And There

Ye Ed. Ed. is in New York to see how successfully the Giants can dodge the Yanks, so Ye L. S. (lightweight substitute) takes typewriter in hand to see what's accumulated under the widening bald spot during the week-end.

Ruhamah and Hepzibah, those two Hickory street doubters, are now convinced autumn is nearer than 'round the corner. Sunday morning church-goers traversed wet, slippery streets, entered places of worship under a shower of falling leaves. Two large trees in General Warren Park are almost bare; the streets department hauled away almost an entire truckload from under them, Saturday morning. Pushing time is at hand: furnace thermostats and cars.

Imagine, if you can, how they felt! The sweet young thing, all starry-eyed, and the doggie three striper, quietly taking their places at the Sunday morning breakfast table in the Carver, and already admiringly surveyed by a well-filled dining room, when from her neatly-folded top coat came a veritable shower of rice, rolling noisily across the floor!

Potentialities: Don Brown, with that famous and radiating personality, makes a good public relations man for concrete products, even the submerged variety.

When doing columnizing in this here town some 25 years ago, we were always nominating various groups as the best supper servers. Conditions and Warren county cooking have not changed: we now nominate, until sampling the culinary art of others, the Eastern Star ladies of Youngsville! Several opportunities are coming up: the WSCS will serve a turkey dinner in Lander Community House, 5 to 8 p. m. Wednesday; and next Sunday, Oct. 14, in the Sons of Italy recreation hall, it gives spaghetti, lots of it, painstakingly prepared by that cook of cooks, Teresa, and friend husband, Brick Lavary.

And have you ever known a town in which the restaurants have such good home-made pie? We've enjoyed it in every instance, all good: Geracinos, Savoy, Blue and White, YWCA, Texas, Penn, the dinora, Pace's, Beebe's, the Carver, Bell-O-View, Cottage Kitchen—our boy Harry made 25 pies one day last week! And that for pie.

New Uranium Sources Promise Unlimited A-Bomb Production

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Only half of Connecticut Senator Brien McMahon's latest big idea got much attention. This was the part that proposed mass production of new atomic weapons at a cost of $6 billion a year.

The part that got lost was the Senator's other resolution, calling on all the peoples of the world to unite for a great moral crusade for peace, freedom, and disarmament in all conventional, biological, chemical, atomic, and hydrogen armaments.

To some cynics, this may appear like talking out of both sides of the mouth at the same time. On the one side it comes out, "Arm to the teeth with new and more deadly weapons." On the other side it comes out, "Let's cut out all armaments and have peace."

Senator McMahon of course likes to toss out these bomb-shell ideas. As speeches to dramatize the horrors of future atomic wars, if any, the McMahon proposals make good American propaganda. They speak softly of peace, yet wave around quite a big stick. Paradoxically, the Senator offers both his proposals as economics.

It is cheaper to wage atomic warfare than conventional warfare, he argues. It would be cheaper to give away $10 billion a year in economic aid than it would be to spend $100 billion a year on a war.

THERE can be no denial that when Senator McMahon talks about atomic warfare, he should know whereof he speaks. As Chairman of the Joint Senate-House committee on atomic energy, he has access to the most highly classified secrets of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Department of Defense.

He must be listened to and believed when he says, "There is virtually no limit and no limiting factor upon the number of A-bombs which the United States can manufacture, given time and given a decision to proceed all-out."

This statement is supported by previously released information. The supply of uranium ore has been greatly increased since the end of the war. There have been new discoveries in Colorado and New Mexico. Uranium is being processed as a by-product of super-phosphate fertilizers in Florida and gold mine tailings in South Africa. There is reason to believe that still further discoveries of uranium deposits will be made.

STILL another factor to be considered is the possible use of other raw materials. Bombs are made of uranium 235 or plutonium made from uranium 238. Uranium 238 has not been utilized in mass production on a commercial scale. Thorium offers another possible source of fissionable materials as yet untapped.

Two other factors to be taken into consideration are the more efficient use of uranium or plutonium in bombs and the development of "breeder" reactors.

The breeder would generate fissionable material faster than it is consumed in a chain reaction. A breeder reactor has been built at the Arco, Idaho, AEC center. It is now undergoing tests as a reactor. Greater efficiency in atomic explosives has been demonstrated by the improvement of bombs from Hiroshima to the last Bikini and New Mexico tests. Theoretically, 2.2 pounds of uranium have the explosive power of 40 million pounds of TNT.

What all this adds up to is that as the supply of fissionable materials increases, from whatever source, the atomic energy plant can be enlarged to use these supplies. Senator McMahon seems to indicate that the plant can now be sextupled.

Television Talk
by CHUCK LOSH

Probably the most confusing item in a television installation for the average person to cope with is the antenna. As Mr. Private Utikson monitors through the country-side he will, if he is following the roof tops, be confronted with a wide array of varying installed sizes and "Beebe's" contraptions. Whenever you see a particular type of antenna, the one and only — all this is of course very confusing and a person with no experience may in a considerable time be "playing the field of antennas" before the suitable type is found for his location. The cheapest, an in the long run, most efficient way is to have your antenna installed by an experienced, technically qualified installation team. The screw-driver mechanic has no place in a television installation. The need is for qualified engineering. . . . When your installation is effected by Western Anteo, you can be sure that you have the right antenna installed the right way the first time. We have installed more TV antennas than any other organization in this part of the state under varying reception conditions across three counties. RE SURE!—Buy incomparable SYLVANIA TELEVISION and have it installed by WESTERN AUTO ASSOCIATE STORE, 221 LIBERTY ST., PHONE 1483. All remember, buy no TV antenna system until you have asked us about our exclusive "SIMPLIMATIC POWER BOOSTING" the world's most powerful television boosting system.

The Changing Landscapes

RALPH G. ECKERT

Hello Folks: Well it looks as though our good working days outdoors are pretty well numbered now that we have started to get cold rains, frost and in some sections freezing weather. We still have a lot of conservation practices to get on the land that have been planned for establishment this fall.

I attended two very interesting meetings with the veteran-agriculture tranees' classes in Lander and Sugar Grove. During these meetings the documentary film, "The River" was shown and a discussion on soil conservation followed. The SCS cooperation with the local district and how they can be of assistance to the farmers of Warren County was explained. District membership forms were obtained from Harry Bergstrom and Jim Lacey, instructors, and signed by interested members. Membership forms can be obtained by anyone interested in conservation work on their farms from any director, PMA Committeemen, veteran agriculture instructors or other cooperating agency representatives.

A tour of the Hugh Sechrist farm by the conservation class of Warren High School was conducted by the SCS. The conservation survey, conservation farm plan, established and planned practices were seen or explained during a discussion on the farm.

Paul Landon, SCS technician, helped A. Fern Morton of Bear Lake, A. H. Dalrymple of Lander and George Wolosen of Spartansburg make their conservation surveys. The capability maps will be developed from the information obtained on soils, slope and erosion and used by these farmers in the preparation of their complete conservation farm plan at a later date.

Changes in Farm Program Increase Dairy Income

Many dairymen in the great dairy regions of the Central and North-eastern States, as well as in other parts of the country, could increase their net incomes up to $1,000 or more per year at current price levels by making full use of the latest and best technical information on grassland agriculture, according to the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Increased forage production could be handled without increasing the labor force on the farm by using newer machines, such as the field pick-up baler and the field forage harvester, and by relying more heavily on custom hired work. Now finishing of hay, according to preliminary research results, will provide 5 to 10 per cent more milk per acre of forage than regular field curing methods. The increase may be as high as 40 per cent in comparison with field cured hay that has been rained on.

More cows will require more feed so that the farm's cropping program also will get plenty of attention. More legumes will be used in the hay mixture. Rotations will be better planned to include more years in grasslands and more fertilizer will be used. Corn will get a liberal application of manure and 250 pounds of 3-10-10 commercial fertilizer, or its equivalent, per acre at planting. Mixed ladino seedings will receive lime, manure, and around 300 pounds of superphosphate. So far as possible, all hay will receive an annual top dressing of either manure amended with superphosphate or double the quantity of 0-14-

14 fertilizer. Suitable areas of permanent pasture will be improved by reseeding and treated every third year with 8 tons of manure and 400 pounds of superphosphate and with 1 ton of lime every 7 years. As a result of these practices, production of forage might increase about one-fourth. Use of hired custom equipment for corn planting and harvesting and pasturing more of the farm forage would prevent any increase in labor requirements. Along with the increase in productivity the dairy farmer would find a noticeable improvement in his income. Assuming prices received and costs at about current levels, the net increase in income from an average size northeastern dairy farm would be more than $1,000, most of which would result from the gain in farm output.

Each farmer would have to plan according to his particular circumstances. The forage crops a farmer adopts would depend, among other things, on the type of soil on his place. The amount and type of equipment needed would vary from farm to farm. The same would be true of changes in barn chores and other herd management practices.

In planning a reorganization of his farm program the dairy farmer will find it worthwhile to get the opinions of agronomists, dairy nutritionists, farm management specialists, and other experts. Because of the broad scope of his plan, the more good information he gets, the better will be his chances for success.

low, completed his conservation farm plan with the help of the SCS technician. His plan calls for tree planting to be used for forest and Christmas tree production. He is also planting shrubs for feed and shelter of wildlife as well as good conservation of the land.

Brackett Ayers completed the conservation plan on his Yankee-hist farm, with SCS help. He plans to improve his pasture so he can run beef during the summer and sell it off in the fall. He also plans on extensive planting of multiflora rose for fencing the pasture. The remainder of his farm will be planted to trees for forest products or Christmas tree production. See you all next week.

No Forest Fires In Month of July

Harrisburg—Pennsylvania's Department of Forests and Waters today reported "no forest fires" during the entire month of July. This was in sharp contrast to the 100,000 acres of wooded lands recently ravaged by fires in more than 75 different areas scattered through California and Oregon.

Secretary M. F. Draemel attributed the July record for Pennsylvania to the field forces of the Department for their constant vigilance, and their year-round educational program designed to teach the public the value of protecting our great natural resources, forests, from the devastating results of fire.

"It seems evident," Secretary Draemel said, "that the day and night efforts of the State's foresters, inspectors, rangers and wardens are today paying dividends. These men have been extremely unselfish with their time and their efforts to educate the visitors to the forests and parks in using care with fire."

The Secretary added that during most of July the woods were very dry, due to lack of rain for an extended period, and that "even though the forests are lush and green, there was always a danger of destruction from fire."

Church Problems Are Discussed at Session

Lander, Oct. 8—About 60 official board members from the Lottsville, Sugar Grove, Akeley, Russell and Lander Methodist churches attended the quarterly conference held in the local church.

Rev. Gustav Erickson gave the opening devotion and Rev. Wayne Furman, superintendent of the Jamestown District, spoke on the evangelistic work being done by pastors of the district.

Dr. Arthur Colley, pastor of First Methodist church in Warren, spoke of the Cribbs Home, the Christian Advocate, and the effort to assume responsibility for more missionary work.

Rev. Furman led in a discussion on how to enlist more young people in the church work, with F. A. Schoonover, Sugar Grove, leading an article on the same subject. Rounding out the program, Rev. Colley showed slides, "At the Crossroads."

At the close of the meeting, the young people served lunch.

The next meeting will be held at 8:00 p. m. October 23 at the home of Mrs. Anna Mae Rowley, with everyone to come masked for a Halloween party.

NAMED TO COMMITTEE

Kenneth Lundahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer T. Lundahl, 6 Pioneer street, has been named a member of the coronation committee in charge of the Vi-king and Vi-queen coronation ceremony at the Homecoming celebration at Augustana College, Rock Island, Ill., October 26, 27 and 28.

The affair was held in the Clarendon IOOF hall, with a tureen dinner at 6:30 o'clock at tables decorated with fall flowers which were the gift of the Crescent Floral Gardens. Each honored one was presented with a corsage of gold-colored mums.

Old Time Fair Gives Promise of Being Fun

An Old Time Fair and Homecoming is the outstanding event on the fall calendar of the Women's Association of the First Presbyterian church, with Thursday, October 25, as the date set for the event.

Old friends, new friends, townspeople, country people, all will be welcome when the gates open at 10:30 a. m.

Women of the church have been busy for months turning out items both practical and unusual and committees report everything from aprons to baked goods, candy and nuts to plants may be had at reasonable prices. Lunch will be served, also, and these tickets may be had by telephoning Mrs. Anthony Famos, 2996.

There will be a special room of interest to the children and a tea room where old and new friends may meet for a visit.

The Presbyterian Men will have members of that organization on hand during the evening to take old fashioned "tintypes" for the family album.

The public is cordially invited to come and shop and just to visit.

RUSSELL WCTU

Start Early to Train Child In Being Self-Reliant

EXPLAINED one mother who had made up her mind to give her grade-school son more responsibility and to let him do more things on his own instead of trying to protect him against all kinds of danger:

"It just dawned on me that actually I've only got eight more years—and then the Army will have him. So I have to let him start making some choices and taking some chances. Otherwise, I'm going to turn a baby over to the Army."

That is sound thinking. And if you substitute "life" for "Army" it is sound thinking any time. And it is equally true of your young daughters as well as of your young sons.

When you catch yourself doing your child's thinking for him or telling him he can't do this or do that because you know you would worry about him, stop and figure up how many years there are left before you are going to have to turn him loose completely.

The answer will probably startle you. And it may make you suddenly realize that for the child's good you mustn't wait and try to let go of him all at once.

You've got to let go gradually. And the sooner you start the gradual process of letting go, the easier it is to do when the child steps into manhood or womanhood.

DON'T TAKE THE "EASY" WAY

THE easiest thing in the world for a mother to do is to overprotect a child. It is easier to say "No" than to say "Yes" and worry about a child's being able to look out for himself in some situation that is frightening to the parent but that the child insists he is capable of handling on his own.

It is easier to make all of your child's decisions for him than to let him make his own as often as possible, even though sometimes this means he has to learn from a wrong choice or a wrong decision.

It is easier on you to overprotect, but some day it will be much harder. And that is when you have to turn the child loose completely. Think it over. How many years are actually left to you to begin a gradual process of turning loose?

Conewango Club Books Radio Editor of N. Y. Herald-Tribune

Members of the Conewango Club will be privileged to hear a talk by Richard L. Tobin Radio Editor of the New York Herald Tribune at their weekly dinner meeting this Thursday, October 11th.

Mr. Tobin, author, newspaperman, war correspondent and radio commentator has spent all his professional life upholding family tradition. His father was an editor for forty years of newspapers, books and magazines. The famous author, "Ring" Lardner was Richard Tobin's uncle while his grandmother was an author of note.

It is small wonder that Dick Tobin turned to writing at an early age. He has spent most of his professional life working at every type of assignment on the New York Herald Tribune. As Radio News Director of the Tribune he broadcasts a weekly commentary over the Mutual Broadcasting System on the important stories of the day.

He has covered his share of murder, politics and wars. He reported the famous Lindbergh case, the overthrow of Tammany by New York's ex Mayor La Guardia; and other big stories of the last two decades. He spent over a year in war-time London and survived

Richard L. Tobin

He delivered papers, set type, helped run presses and linotype machines. At the University of Michigan he gravitated, quite naturally, towards the Michigan Daily and put that paper on the map by making it carry general news as well as campus reporting.

In 1932 Mr. Tobin joined the staff of the New York Herald Tribune. For a time he was Director of News at the American Broadcasting Company. Since 1940 he has been an assistant professor of journalism at the Pulitzer School of Columbia University. He has written for Readers Digest, Coronet, the New Yorker and other leading publications.

In 1948 his second book "Golden Opinions" was published. A book of essays and comment on a variety of subjects, it won favorable critical attention. His first novel "The Center of the World" published early this year added new laurels to the writing tradition of Tobin's family tree.

The subject of his talk to members of the Conewango Club this Thursday evening will be "History in the Making or Washington Review". All members are reminded that dinner reservations must be made at the Club by tomorrow noon.

Queen City Murder Case

By Wm. G. Bogart

Chapter 18

THEY were seated in the roomy, comfortable inner office, talking, and Moe Martin had taken the newspaper clipping and two letters out of his pocket, spread them out on the desk. Beside them he had placed two other newspaper clippings which were yellow with age. Johnny and Nancy O'Neill had been looking at the latter.

Moe Martin was saying, "So I tore these out of the old newspaper when the attendant wasn't around. You see now, Johnny, why I recognized the guy running out of here a little while ago. He hasn't changed much being in prison, I guess."

"Jeannette did, though." He was looking at the old picture reproduced in the news item. "She was a most hefty then, even though she was ten years younger." He frowned. "This item doesn't tell us much, however. It doesn't say where he was from. Apparently he and Jeannette were staying at a hotel here when he was nabbed for killing a guy. The only thing we know is that his name is Fred Tolman."

Johnny turned to Nancy. "Does his name mean anything to you, honey?"

She shook her head, and then she said, "Johnny?"

He had been scanning the news item again, to be certain there was nothing he had overlooked. "Yes?" He looked up.

"Why get mixed up in this murder, Johnny? You called the police anonymously. Let them handle it from here on. No one need know."

"But someone does know," Johnny pointed out. "In all probability it's our escaped convict—Fred Tolman. But it could be someone else who was there in Jeannette's apartment and who found my name. Don't you see? Until I can be certain who that person is I'm on the spot. That's why I'd like to know. That's why I sent Moe, here, up to the Enquirer to learn anything he could."

Mention of the newspaper remind Johnny of something. He turned to his partner and asked, "Did you stop off some place on the way back? When I called up they said you'd been gone almost half an hour."

"Oh!" Moe Martin's eyes looked extra large behind the horn-rimmed glasses he had put on to read the newspaper account again. "An old friend of yours, he said he was. We stopped in a bar next door to have a drink—"

"What was his name?" "Steve Eggers."

In response to Johnny's questioning glance, Nancy said, "Yes, he's still a reporter on the Enquirer. And still, drinking, Johnny."

"I'll say he can drink!" said Moe.

Johnny's fingers drummed thoughtfully on the desk top. Nancy's glance went to his eyes. She said, "What is it, Johnny?"

"I wonder..." he mused, then added, "Maybe Steve Eggers is just the person to help us. He always liked to roll the dice at some of those popular night clubs across the river. He gets around, meets all kinds of characters. He looked at his partner. "What was the name of that bar?"

"The Cricket."

Nancy added, "It's right next to the Enquirer. A lot of newspaper people hang out there. It's a well-known spot."

Johnny said, "See if you can get it for me on the phone, baby. I've got an idea."

Going out to the switchboard, Nancy said, "Don't worry, he'll still be there provided the place hasn't burned down!"

JOHNNY spent several moments reviewing old times when he got the reporter on the wire. "Busy, kid?" he asked finally.

"The town's a morgue," Steve Eggers said sadly. "There's a raging blizzard outside and I'm stuck here for the night. Why, can you suggest anything, Johnny, old boy?"

Johnny said, "Well, a blizzard's one excuse for not tearing yourself away from a bar. But look, kid. How's about taking a run across the river? This one's on me. Nancy's coming along too." He winked at Nancy, standing in the doorway to the other office, and somehow she didn't seem pleased. "Do you happen to know anyone at the Club Mayfair over in Kentucky?"

"Know them all!" said Steve. "Nancy's coming, huh? Say, that's swell. Sure thing I'll go!"

"We'll pick you up in fifteen minutes right there where you are," finished Johnny, and hung up.

Nancy said, "Why include me? Steve Eggers is a wolf."

"I had to bribe the guy, pet. Otherwise he might have turned me down. If I remember correctly, Steve always went for you in a big way."

Moe said, "About this other thing..." He dropped his voice, glancing at Nancy, busy fixing her make-up. "Has she heard from her sister? On that case, we can make a little extra money."

Johnny said, "And I can get myself killed if I don't hurry up and find out who knocked off Jeannette Evans. Look, sweetheart, you stay right here and sit on the phone. Then, if Nancy's sister calls again, you can get the information. So far, nothing drastic has happened and I doubt if we'll even go out there."

"What if Fred Tolman comes back?"

"I told you, it's very doubtful that he will. But if it will make you feel any better here," he took the pistol from his pocket and handed it to his partner.

A moment later he and Nancy were going down the corridor. She looked good in a silver fox coat. She would have looked good in rags.

Waiting for the elevator she looked at Johnny Saxon. "Johnny," she said softly, "this really is serious, isn't it? I mean, for you. Do be careful!"

He grinned, squeezed her arm and said, "Don't worry about you, uncle Johnny, pet. I lead a charmed life!"

She was silent riding down in the elevator.

Potter Announces Wide Support For Freedom's Crusade

David Potter, Warren county chairman of the Crusade for Freedom, announced today that 23 leading organizations in Pennsylvania have agreed to sponsor the Crusade's campaign to fight Communism with Truth.

"The 1951 Crusade is seeking to enlist 2,200,000 Pennsylvanians and to obtain contributions totaling $300,000 to expand the operations of Radio Free Europe, the powerful broadcasting station set up by the Crusade in Munich, Germany, to send messages of hope to the enslaved peoples of Czechoslovakia," said Mr. Potter.

Funds raised this year will be used to build at least two additional Radio Free Europe stations, one of which will be beamed to the suppressed peoples of Hungary, with the hope that funds also will be available for a new station in Asia.

Mr. Potter said that the following have consented to serve as the Crusade's state sponsoring organizations: Amvets, Jewish War Veterans, National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, Pennsylvania Aso. of Broadcasters, Pennsylvania Bankers' Aso., Pennvania Bar Aso., Pennsylvania Chiefs of Police Aso., Pennsylvania CIO Council, Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers, Pennsylvania Democratic State Committee, Pennsylvania Economy League, Pennsylvania Elks State Aso., Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs, Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce, Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors, Pennsylvania State Education Aso., Pennsylvania State Committee of Pennsylvania, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Women's Grand Lodge, E'nal Brith.

Another growing season has come to a close, and with annual crops this season's growth must either be harvested and sold; stored away in barns or warehouses, or left to spoil in the fields in order to make way for next spring's plowing.

There is one crop, though, whether it be contained in the small farm woodlot, the industrial forest or in a state or national forest that is not lost, nor subject to expensive storage if not harvested when the current market is poor. That is the annual crop of wood fiber.

"All over the Nation another annual ring of wood has been added to each of the billions of trees, of infinite variety, that form the forests of America. This current growth is so unspectacular, compared to fields of ripening corn or wheat, that to some people trees never seem to grow.

The slow growing, thick walled cells of the summer wood, which followed the fast growing, thin walled cells of the spring wood will form the division line between this season's growth and next year's spring growth. This annual ring constitutes the 1951 timber crop of America. Fitting over the entire tree, out to the tiniest twig, this ring of wood fits like a glove next to the cambium cells just beneath the bark. The thickness of this annual ring might be almost microscopic on a slow growing Utah juniper in the semi-desert country of Arizona, or it might be half an inch wide on one of the fast growing southern pines such as slash pine. For the same species of tree it may vary tremendously depending upon soil conditions, competition by neighbors in a crowded stand or current drought conditions.

The number of rings that it takes to yield an inch of radius is very important to the forester. With an increment borer, which is a hollow auger made of the finest Swedish steel, the forester extracts a small core of wood from which he can determine the rate of growth for the past several decades. He is usually concerned, in a managed forest, with the story the annual rings have to tell in the past decade. A substantial falling off in growth indicates that the stand of timber needs thinning so that rapid growth may be realized on just a few, select trees per acre rather than putting small annual rings on a great many trees per acre.

The thickness of the annual ring can also affect quality of the timber product. Too rapid growth in softwoods, such as the pines, is not desirable for too few rings to the inch is reflected in lower density and structural weakness in the wood product. The highly prized old growth pine, used in pattern work, was made up of many rings to the inch uniformly spaced. The fine white pine mast timbers, that were cut in Warren county in the early days, could not have withstood the buffeting of the gales as the ships they rode rounded the Horn had it not been for the uniformly spaced annual rings of just the right number to the inch. In hardwoods, such as black cherry, the faster the growth the denser the wood. In white ash only the fast growing second growth trees make the best baseball bats.

On the Allegheny National Forest we seek, by intensive management, to control the number of rings per inch so that the largest volume of timber possible, consistent with quality, can be realized from each acre.

Kiwanis Starts Club in Youngsville

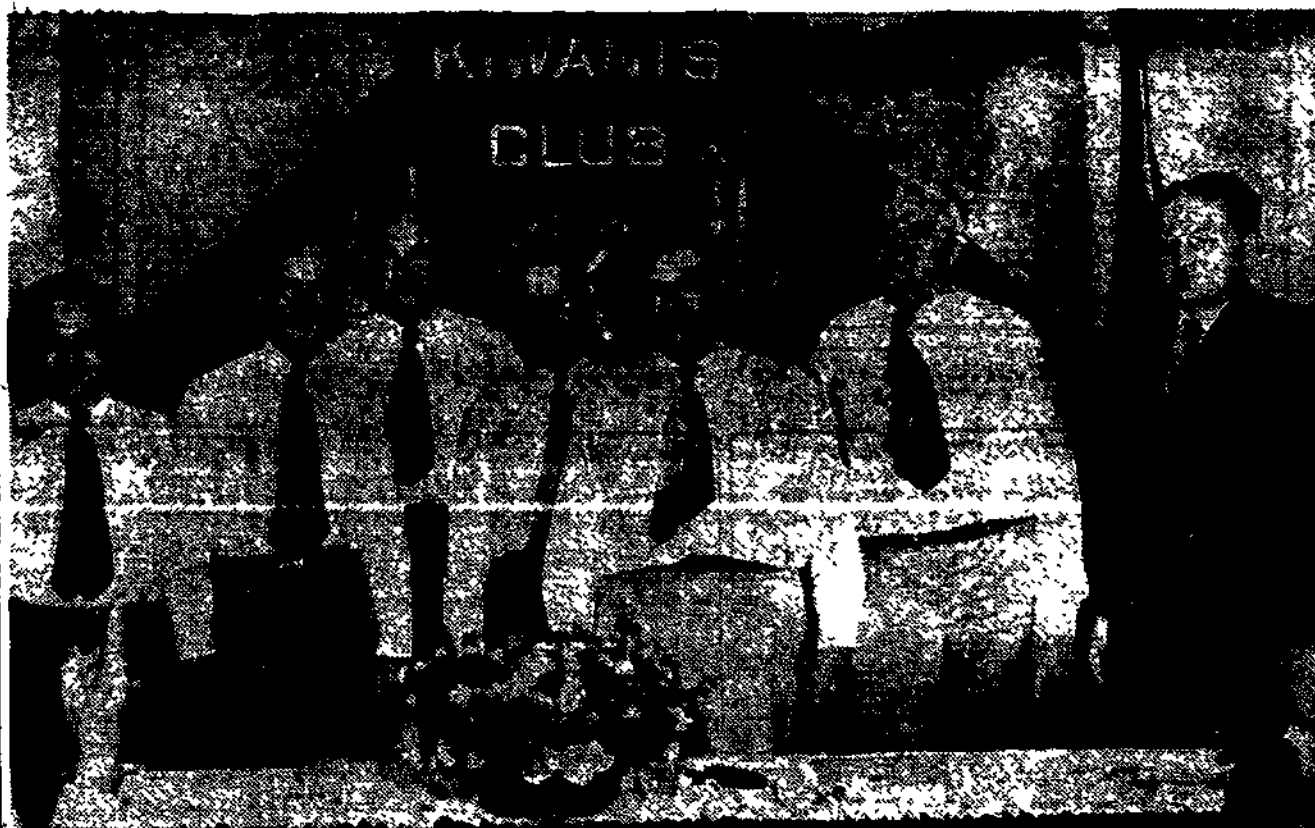

Although no mention of the event will be found in the birth column, the Warren Kiwanis club became the proud father of a lusty, howling son, Friday evening, when a new Kiwanis club came into existence in Youngsville. Weight, considerable; prospects, excellent; condition, good and improving by leaps and bounds!

This is the third arrival fathered by Warren Kiwanians, its older brothers being named Kane and Bradford.

Introduced as "top brass in Kiwanis," Lieutenant Governor Sam Lucas came from Greenville to join a large delegation of Warren Kiwanis club members, headed by President Paul E. Harrington, who entertained a group of over 25 Youngsville men at dinner as prospective charter members of a new club. The dinner, truly a masterpiece in culinary art, was served by the ladies of the Eastern Star in the Masonic dining room of the IOOF building. Mrs. Mae Johnson was chairman of the committee, ably assisted by Mrs. Bernice Chapel, Mrs. Evelyn Littlefield, Mrs. Vivian Smith, Mrs. Belle Sample, Mrs. Edna Johnson, Mrs. Thelma Day, Mrs. Mildred Clark, Mrs. Ethel Abraham, Mrs. Nona Hamilton, Mrs. Wave Carlson and Mrs. Virgie Smith. The long tables were beautifully decorated with marigolds, pom poms, and some huge dahlias from the garden of Mrs. J. W. Hamilton.

Clement Wolstencroft officiated as chairman of the meeting, and put everyone in good humor by leading group singing after declaring "One thing Kiwanians do well is sing." Attorney R. Pierson Eaton, sans habeas corpus, was at the piano.

Mr. Harrington welcomed the Youngsville men as guests and spoke feelingly of the privilege enjoyed in being a Kiwanian. "You can go to one of these meetings bogged down with the worries and burdens of the day, and leave the meeting refreshed," he said, and praised the club's versatility in being able to enjoy "some horseplay, conversation, good programs and fellowship of the finest sort." He said that Kiwanians are banded together for worthwhile purposes and for the benefit of the community, yet able to have a good time doing all these things. He said the club has high objectives, high ideals, an organization in which men of all faiths get along well together. He said the Warren Kiwanians' new club building committee was set up with one thing in mind: a club in Youngsville.

HAND POINTS AT RAY WEBER, one of the organizers and new president of the Youngsville club: President Paul E. Harrington of Warren Kiwanis club, Judge Allison D. Wade, Clement Wolstencroft, Lieut. Gov. Sam Lucas of Greenville, Harry W. Bell of Greenville, Kiwanian for 28 years and with a perfect attendance for 15 years, and Atty. R. Pierson Eaton.

Mr. Wolstencroft took pleasure in introducing Harry W. Bell, enthusiastic Greenville Kiwanian for 15 years. Mr. Bell expressed his deep interest in Kiwanis work and particularly his interest in visiting Youngsville where his daughter, Louise, used to teach school. His listeners were interested in hearing that Louise and Al Maglasceau, former Youngsville coach, married 17 years ago, now reside in North Tonawanda with their three sons where A. is athletic coach.

Judge Allison D. Wade praised Kiwanis in a brief talk, saying that "no matter if you men grew up together, there is a new and important bond when you become Kiwanians." He especially praised the Eastern Star ladies for the fine dinner served.

Four past presidents of the Warren club were introduced, Pete Eaton, Carl Peterson, Cecil Winans, Russell Hansen. Also introduced were Vice President George Carlson, Secretary Elbert H. Miller, and the directors, Al Babcock, Bob Alexander, George Redding, and Dave Potter. Nevt McCausland received a fine hand when introduced as a long-time and enthusiastic Kiwanian.

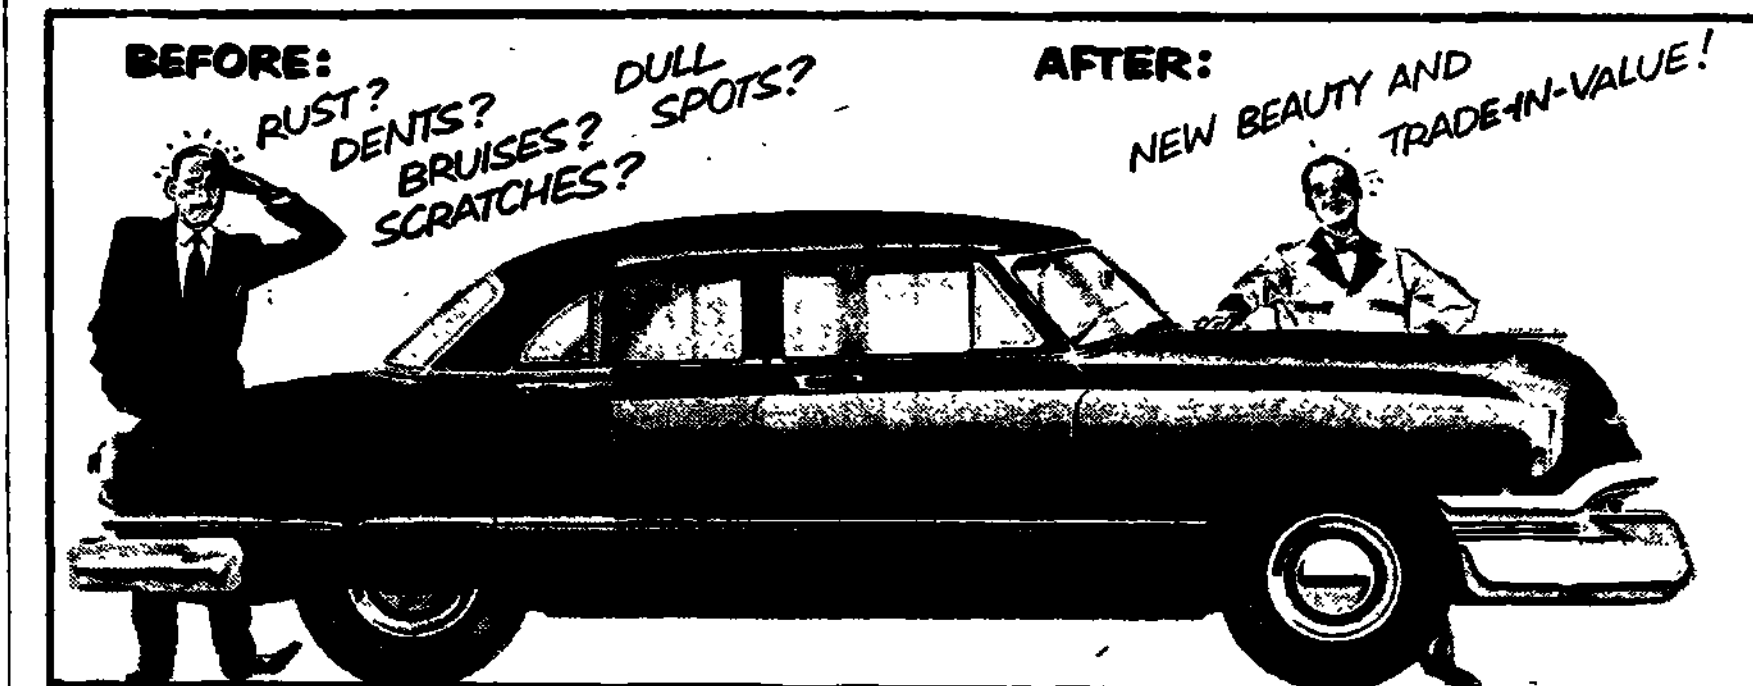

Mr. Potter, who is chairman of the Crusade for Freedom drive, explained its purposes and presented one of the scrolls for signing. He urged that all organizations prepare a scroll and turn it in together with contributions. The half a hundred men present signed the scroll and gave generously. Gordon Clark and Ray Weber, who were active in assembling the Youngsville group, were introduced.

Sam Lucas, the principal speaker of the evening, was then introduced and gave a very stirring talk on Kiwanis work, explaining how much more it is than simply a luncheon club, and said that "Kiwanis is worth only as much as the things it busies itself about." He told interestingly of the work done by Kiwanis for the underprivileged, in serving its community, and claimed that Kiwanians are "the kind of people democracy produces, fearless, forthright and kind." He explained the financial obligations involved and said:

"I am recommending the work of Kiwanis to Youngsville. I could not suggest to you a greater favor than to have a Kiwanis club in Youngsville. Once you get together in Kiwanis fellowship in this or any other community, you will be compensated."

Cecil Winans voiced a cordial welcome from the Warren club to Youngsville Kiwanians to visit the local group at any time, and as the meeting was concluded and a happy evening ended, the Warren

Nine out of ten fires start through carelessness! Today, America can't afford this appalling waste. Fire hurts our defense effort, consumes needed housing, feeds inflation by destroying $2,000,000 in buildings and materials daily. To keep that roof over your head, follow these simple rules.

- Throw out rubbish, rags—today.
- Don't smoke where it's forbidden.
- Never smoke in bed.
- Don't misuse electrical wiring, appliances.
- Use cleaning fluids that won't explode.

The long tables were beautifully decorated with marigolds, pom poms, and some huge dahlias from the garden of Mrs. J. W. Hamilton.

Clement Wolstencroft officiated as chairman of the meeting, and put everyone in good humor by leading group singing after declaring "One thing Kiwanians do well is sing." Attorney R. Pierson Eaton, sans habes corpus, was at the piano.

Mr. Harrington welcomed the Youngsville men as guests and spoke feelingly of the privilege enjoyed in being a Kiwanian. "You can go to one of these meetings bogged down with the worries and burdens of the day, and leave the meeting refreshed," he said, and praised the club's versa-lity in being able to enjoy "some horsingplay, conversation, good programs and fellowship of the finest sort." He said that Kiwanians are banded together for worthwhile purposes and for the benefit of the community, yet able to have a good time doing all these things. He said the club has high objectives, high ideals, an organization in which men of all faiths get along well together. He said the Warren Kiwanians' new club building committee was set up with one thing in mind: a club in Youngsville.

Mr. Wolstencroft took pleasure in introducing Harry W. Bell, enthusiastic Greenville Kiwanian for 15 years. Mr. Bell expressed his deep interest in Kiwanis work and particularly his interest in visiting Youngsville where his daughter, Louise, used to teach school. His listeners were interested in hearing that Louise and Al Maglaseau, former Youngsville coach, married 17 years ago, now residing in North Tonawanda with their three sons where A. is athletic coach.

Judge Allison D. Wade praised Kiwanis in a brief talk, saying that "no matter if you men grew up together, there is a new and important bond when you become Kiwanians." He especially praised the Eastern Star ladies for the fine dinner served.

Four past presidents of the Warren club were introduced, Pete Eaton, Carl Peterson, Cecil Winans, Russell Hansen. Also introduced were Vice President George Carlson, Secretary Elbert H. Miller, and the directors, Al Babcock, Bob Alexander, George Redding, and Dave Potter. Newt McCausland received a fine hand when introduced as a long-time and enthusiastic Kiwanian.

Mr. Potter, who is chairman of the Crusade for Freedom drive, explained its purposes and presented one of the scrolls for signing. He urged that all organizations prepare a scroll and turn it in together with contributions. The half a hundred men present signed the scroll and gave generalously. Gordon Clark and Ray Weber, who were active in assembling the Youngsville group, were introduced.

Sam Lucas, the principal speaker of the evening, was then introduced and gave a very stirring talk on Kiwanis work, explaining how much more it is than simply a luncheon club, and said that "Kiwanis is worth only as much as the things it busies itself about." He told interestingly of the work done by Kiwanis for the underprivileged, in serving its community, and claimed that Kiwanians are "the kind of people democracy produces, fearless, forthright and kind." He explained the financial obligations involved and said:

"I am recommending the work of Kiwanis to Youngsville. I could not suggest to you a greater favor than to have a Kiwanis club in Youngsville. Once you get together in Kiwanis fellowship in this or any other community, you will be compensated."

Close upon the completion of Mr. Lucas' talk, the precociousness of the infant club was shown. While 25 men were needed for a charter, 28 immediately signed the petition, and Ray Weber was named as president to serve out the current year. He is almost a Kiwanis legacy, his father having been Kiwanis secretary in Erie for 20 years while his brother is president of a new Kiwanis club at Millcreek. Gordon Kay was elected vice president, and Paul

Somebody was just a little Careless

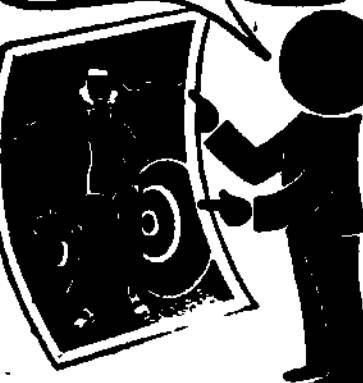

Nine out of ten fires start through carelessness! Today, America can't afford this appalling waste. Fire hurts our defense effort, consumes needed housing, feeds inflation by destroying $2,000,000 in buildings and materials daily. To keep that roof over your head, follow these simple rules.

- Throw out rubbish, rags—today.
- Don't smoke where it's forbidden.
- Never smoke in bed.
- Don't misuse electrical wiring, appliances.
- Use cleaning fluids that won't explode.

CHAMPION SHOWS WHY HE'S AN EXPERT

By OSWALD JACOBY

When the visiting experts arrive in St. Paul for the All-American Tournament (Oct. 18-21), Dave Claren will be waiting on the doorstep to greet them. Dave is technically a visitor too, since he lives in Minneapolis, but that doesn't count since I'm told that you can stand with one foot in St. Paul and the other in Minneapolis.

Claren is the leading expert in the Twin Cities—and for some distance around too. Today's hand, in which he was declarer, will give you some idea of why he is so highly thought of.

West opened the king of hearts. West opened the king of hearts. and dummy won with the ace.

Declarer next took the king and ace of trumps, discovering to his sorrow that west had a sure trump trick. In view of the fact that there was a nasty-looking diamond situation, the slam seemed shaky at this point.

Claren reasoned that West had at least six hearts for his vulnerable overall. Since West was marked with three spades, he was

Declarer therefore cashed the ace of diamonds and led a low diamond toward dummy. If West had a singleton diamond, he would be given no chance to ruff a winner. As it happened, West followed suit, and South got back to his hand by ruffing dummy's re-poor East save? South continued by taking the king of clubs and leading a low club towards dummy. West saw no advantage in ruffing, so he discarded a heart. Dummy won with the ace of clubs and threw West in with a trump. This play not only forced West to give declarer a ruff-and-sluff, but it also squeezed East. When West led a heart, dummy discarded a diamond, and South ruffed. This left South with two diamonds and the queen of clubs, while dummy had two clubs and a trump. What three cards could poor East save? If East saved only one club, Claren could take the queen of clubs and win the last two tricks in dummy with a trump and a good club. If East saved only one diamond, Claren could ruff a diamond in dummy and return to his hand with the queen of clubs to cash in the last diamond.

Rain Washes Out Sunday's Game In World Series

New York, Oct. 8.—A day-long downpour of rain forced the first postponement of a World Series game since 1941 yesterday and gave the Yankees a chance to change strategy and pitching plans against the astonishing Giants.

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel said he would go today with his ace pitcher, Allie Reynolds, whereas he would have had to gamble with a rookie, Tom Morgan.

The indomitable Giants, ahead two games to one, in the classic, were downhearted over the delay despite the fact that it gave them their first day of rest since Friday, September 28.

Red hot and confident, they wondered if the postponement might cool them off or at least give the Yankees a break because Reynolds was a much better bet to beat their top star, Sal Maglie, than Morgan.

The postponement also was a bitter blow to millions of sock-foot and carpet slipper fans throughout the nation—working people who had been looking forward to sitting in their living rooms and viewing the World Series on their television sets.

These were the folks who couldn't get to see the games on week-days and had counted on this "thrill of thrills" viewing a ball game in their homes on the nation-wide coaxial television hook-up, set up for the first time this year.

Albion Posts 26-6 Win at Youngsville

A 185 pound fullback named Caldwell and a heavy, charging line to open holes for him, spelled defeat for Youngsville Eagles on Saturday at Wilder Field when they played hosts to Albion joint high school. The final score was 26 to 6.

Youngsville's lone tally came in the fourth frame when Wood took a handoff and scampered 30 yards to the two-yard stripe, from where he carried over on the next play.

All scores were made on the ground, although both teams tried and completed several passes.

Meadville's Powerful Bulldogs Eliminate WHS Dragons From Sect. 2 Grid Conference Race

Meadville High Bulldogs romped to a 44-19 victory over the Warren Dragons at Meadville Friday night and moved into a tie with Oil City for the Section Two Conference lead.

A near capacity crowd of 5000 watched the Dragons bow out of the race to the heavier and more powerful Bulldog eleven for their second straight loss after three wins.

The Leidigmen showed a great deal of improvement over their contest with the Oilers, but were no match for Coach Rudolph Gradisek and his boys.

Meadville's impressive victory ranks them with the leading grid contenders of the area and indicates a good chance of their setting a fire under the Oil City team next Friday. The victor's best have a 4-1 season record.

Sam Pendolino's arm proved fatal to Warren in the second period, when he completed three out of his first four passes, two of them for touchdowns.

Another Meadville threat was Dale Ross, big Bulldog fullback, who had no trouble smashing the smaller Dragon line mainly because of the three 200-pounders in his forward wall to open the holes.

Rex Griffith, Meadville signal caller, scored thrice for the winners, and helped out in the ground attack along with left halfback Patsy Maetta.

The Dragons gave their all in the game, despite the odds against them, and the Warren Reserves saw a lot of action in the lopsided contest.

Toby Shea demonstrated a fine job of line blocking, while Dean Veshing, Ed Frontera, Bud Terry and Jim Tridico had their share of the ground work. The passing job remained mostly in the hands of quarterback George Scalise.

Initial scoring came in the first quarter on a 22-yard excursion by Griffith. The Leidigmen came back to lead 7-6 when Terry went four yards for a TD and Shea plunged for the extra point.

Sheffielders Tie Warren Reserves In Homecoming Tilt

Trailing 13-6 in the last minutes of play, Sheffield High Wolverines scored on a pass play and made the extra point to tie a squad of Warren sophomores and juniors 13-13 in a Homecoming game at Sheffield Saturday afternoon.

Neither team was able to touch paydirt in the first half of the game. In the third stanza a Fitzgerald to Piehuta pass climaxed a 53 yard drive for the first tally to give the Wolverines a 6-0 lead.

The Dragonettes came back in the fourth quarter to take the lead 13-6 when Gene Morris hit Dick Hartnett with a 40-yard scoring pass and Mohney staged a beautiful run through center for 55 yards and the second TD.

Then the old statue of liberty play worked on a return punt and placed Sheffield on the Warren five. From there Fitzgerald found Piehuta a second time and ran around end for the PAT that tied the game up.

Here's why Fordomatic puts them all in the past!

For the past year, automotive writers, engineers and owners have been raving about a new kind of automatic driving... and here's why you get it only in Ford Cars:

All the power you need when you need it is yours with Fordomatic. You'll find it the most thrilling experience you ever had. You'll discover the advantages of having... the smooth going that automatic drives employing torque converters can give you... plus the zip, control, and savings that cars with automatic gears can give you. For Fordomatic combines the finer features of all other automatic drives!

IT GIVES YOU INSTANT "GO"

Because Fordomatic gives you a combination of the best features of all other automatic drives, it delivers instant "go" for exceptionally easy, exceptionally smooth starting, passing, and hill climbing. Its extra Intermediate Gear gives you a push of extra power any time you want it... extra braking power, too, that's outstandingly smooth.

IT PRACTICALLY DRIVES ITSELF!

Fordomatic drives your car for you better than you could ever drive it yourself. It brings you a completely new thrill in no-shift-lever, no-dutch-pedal driving, because its development began where all other automatic drives left off!

Some automatics have this

The automatic drive some cars offer you is a torque converter which multiplies torque without the use of gears. Its advantage is a smooth flow of power. Its disadvantage is a smaller range of torque multiplication which requires more power from the engine and an uneconomical axle ratio which increases costs.

Some automatics have this

Other cars offer an automatic drive that uses automatic gears (as illustrated in simplified form at right) instead of a torque converter. The advantage here is more "go," more control and greater economy. The disadvantage is that this system is not as smooth, nor as jerk-free as a torque converter.

Road Closed Five Hours As Truck Upsets

A fractured clavicle. Damage to his car was estimated at $300.

Cars driven by Milford Gene Towne, 19, of Jamestown RD 4, and Louis Dickerson, 60, of Lyndon Park, Falconer, figured in a crash at the scene of the above accident while traffic was being slowed. It was reported by Pennsylvania State Police that Dickerson stopped when flagged down and the car driven by Towne crashed into him. Each car suffered about $100 in damages.

Gloria Lyons, 18, and Gerald Lyons, aged six months, whose address is given as Warren RD 3, are patients in Warren General Hospital after being injured at 2:15 a. m. Sunday when the car in which they were riding left Route 62 one mile south of the New York state line. The former suffered hip and chest injuries while the infant was hurt on the head and right side. They are under observation.

Three cars were damaged, but all of the occupants escaped unhurt in a traffic accident on Route 59 one mile north of Kinzua, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Pennsylvania State Police of the Warren Substation said the three cars were traveling in a line northward from Kinzua. Cars operated by Richard L. Hagley, 23, and Arnold Cunningham, 20, both of Smethport, had stopped, according to reports, when the third machine, driven by Gaydon Barrett, 24, of RD 2, Warren, struck the rear of the Cunningham car. The Cunningham machine, in turn, slammed into the rear of the Hagley auto.

Borough police investigated a Market street accident at 1:50 p. m. Sunday when a 1950 Buick driven by Louis Maw crashed into a 1946 Ford sedan driven by Donald A. Mara, Frewsburg, when Mara stopped for the traffic light at Fifth street intersection, both cars bound north at the time. Damages to Mara's car were estimated at $300 with the Maw vehicle suffering to the extent of $50.

Son's Commanding General Explains Rotation to Mother

An unsolicited explanation of at least one phase of the rotation system for the fighting men in Korea is embodied in an interesting letter just received by Mrs. Raymah E. Akeley, 3 McPherson street, from Major General Robert H. Soule, U. S. A., commanding the Third Infantry Division in Korea. The letter relates to Mrs. Akeley's son, Lieut. Robert Blume, who left Fort Benning, Ga., for Korea on August 27, 1950.

"Recent publicity in newspapers and over the radio, announcing changes in the rotation policy has caused some concern among families of servicemen in Korea regarding rotation. For this reason, I am taking the liberty of writing you to give you some reassurance that rotation within the 3rd Division is being carried on with maximum fairness to all and in a manner calculated to return personnel to the United States at the earliest possible time.

"We of the 3rd Division are immensely proud of the fine record the division has maintained in Korea. The fine esprit de corps and bold achievements are due in no small measure to the leadership, courage and daring of our junior officers. The experience and professional skill built up in Korea are the essence of our successes to date and are the foundation of future victory. Lieutenant Blume is one of my most valued officers and he is giving his country a service of which you may be very proud. It is necessary for him, like officers here, to impart his knowledge and skill to new men in order to keep the division ready for any eventuality. Rest assured, however, that consonant with the demands of active military operations and the timely arrival of replacements, Lieutenant Blume will be rotated from Korea.

South Mountain park, consisting of nearly 15,000 acres near Phoenix, Ariz., is the largest municipal park in the United States.

Garland residents were shocked to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Paul Holmes which occurred at the home of her brother in Titusville where she had gone for a visit. Deepest sympathy is extended her family.

The summer weather is coloring the trees into unusual beauty and the hillsides are rapidly turning into a fairy land of beauty.

Miss Ethel Morris recently fell down a flight of stairs in her home which necessitated X-rays to determine the extent of the injury. Several Garland friends attended the Baker-Stec wedding held in St. John's Church, Tidoute, on Saturday. A reception followed in the American Legion Hall, Titusville. The young couple will occupy an apartment in what was formerly the Methodist parsonage and they have the good wishes of the community for happiness. Alex Kosheba has rented his cottage to a Polish family recently entering the States and the father has secured employment in the Tony Stec sawmill.
